THOUSANDS ATTENDING MINERS' BIG OUTING

Eldora Park Thronged With Coal Diggers to Witness Events

FEATURES NUMEROUS

First-Aid Contests Start Early in Afternoon--Dr. Holmes Unable to Come

Close to 5,000 coal miners and their friends are at Eldora park today, having been attracted there by the events of the fourth annual outing of subdistrict No. 3, of District No. 5 U. W. W. A. Chief features of the day according to the program will be a first-aid contest that started at 1 o'clock under direction of Prof. E. E. Bach of Ellsworth and speaking that is to follow the first-aid work. Dr. J. A. Holmes, chief of the United States Bureau of mines, is unable to attend the event. He telegraphed this morning from New Mexico to the effect that his physician would not permit him to leave there at the present time. He has been in that state for weeks recuperating his health.

Fifteen teams are participating in the first-aid contests. Six of them are from Ellsworth and one came from the Thomas mine. Indications are that the silver loving cups offered for the first-aid work will be eagerly contested for.

J W. Paul, who is in charge of the situation at Pittsburg of the United States Bureau of Mines is on the ground and he will take the place of Dr. Holmes in making the chief address of the day. President Van Bittner of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers with others will speak.

DID NOT BREAK QUARANTINE IS THE DECISION

Mary Rodensjefsky of Donora charged with breaking the quarantine law and who in defaut of a fine of $50 and costs, imposed by Justice Frank B. Hambry, of Donora, was committed to jail, was Friday discharged by the court upon habeas corpus proceedings. Judge Irwin ruled that the commitment of the justice was defective in that it did not specifically set forth what provision of the act the woman had violated that is failed to show whether or not she had torn down the quarantine notice on her home or had broken the quarantine.

The woman a foreigner, it is said, did not fully understand what the notice placed on her house meant. Her child, burning its mouth severely with lye, she rushed from her home to a nearby drug store to secure some medicine. While doing so she was seen by Health Officer Michael E. Ready of Donora. He made information against her and she was arrested. At the hearing the fine of $50 and costs was imposed. She had been locked up for two days.

VISITING NOW WITH FORMER CHARLEROITES

Ira L. Nickeson Writes of Meeting Prof. W. D. Wright and L. V. Zimmers

Borough Clerk Ira L. Nickeson has written a letter to the Mail from Corry, in the vicinity of which he is spending a vacation. In his letter he tells of visits with Prof. W. D. Wright, the first superintendent of schools of Charleroi and with L. V. Zimmers, formerly of Charleroi. Mr. Nickeson writes:

"Only a line or two that we may not be entirely forgotten. We had a very pleasant trip through to Linesville, Crawford county. We were met at the station by Prof. W. D. Wright, who drove us out to his home two miles in the country. Our stay there, though short, was most pleasant and we were most cordially entertained.

"The professor has a lovely home on a farm of 200 acres, which is practically level, 1,200 bushels of oats—his corn looks good and he has plenty of potatoes. He is as much enthused in his farming as he was in school work in Charleroi, and said that it was much more independent. He has much sympathy for those who are dependent and under the control of others for their sustenance. His farm is well stocked. All his farm machinery is new and up to date. After our short stay there he with his family drove us to Conneaut lake, eight miles distant, where we all spent a short time seeing the sights and partaking of some of the pleasures that so many others were enjoying most heartily. We left there on the trolley cars for Corry where we met by Mr. Zimmers and driven out three miles into the country.

"They are situated on an elevated farm with a view of many miles in every direction and in an invigorating atmosphere which brings vigor and rest to a tired body and an increased demand for the inner man.

"The lack of rain has cut the crops a little short, yet their barns and larders seem well supplied. In our travels we noticed a great deal of oats to be harvested. Although rath-

DR. GRIFFITH SAID TO BE ON HIS WAY HOME

Monessen Physician Returning From Trip Abroad to Receive Sentence

Dr. Martin Griffith, the Monessen physician who was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Samuel Robinson, a music teacher, and who has been in London attending the Royal College of Surgeons ,has been heard from. He stated in his letter that he expected to leave Saturday, August 15, for home. While the war effected traffic greatly and the departure of all steamers from foreign ports was very uncertain, the doctor felt that he would experience difficulty in carrying his original plans.

A message from London states that the Campania left for New York last Saturday and it is believed that this is the steamer the doctor will arrive on The matter as to whether or not Dr. Griffith would be able to return by the time that is set for him to appear in court to receive his sentence has been much discussed. He is out on $7,500 bail.

SMALL CHANGE RESULTS FROM NATIONAL PROBE

Food Prices Remain Practically the Same in This Country

PREDICTIONS ARE MADE

Believed by Local Grocers That Price of Sugar and Flour Will Drop

According to local grocers the prices of food stuffs as a general thing are very little changed in spite of the national probe of prices. Fruits and vegetables are much cheaper, especially fruits. The advanced price of sugar is said to be responsible for this. Canned goods remains without an increase. Sugar is still selling here at 32 for a 25 pound sack, while in some places it is selling at $2.25.

In New York sugar has dropped 50 cents on the hundred pounds, but as yet there is no change in the Pittsburg market. The drop of 50 cents on the hundred will not change the price on the 25 pound sacks however as it is being sold now at cost. In the majority of local stores flour has had only a slight raise, being about 10 cents on the sack.

It is the belief of local merchants that sugar will drop to something like normal within the next month or two. They say there is no reason why it should remain high. It is also believed that flour will be cheaper. The price of butter and eggs remains about the same.

BIGAMY CHARGE IS MADE

Man Arrested in Pittsburg Charged With Serious Crime Here

MUST FACE THE COURT

William G. Hall, a confessed bigamist of Bellaire, Ohio, who has been working on a local railroad in this locality for the last three or four months, living the while in West Brownsville was taken this morning to Washington, where he will face the court. Information was made against him Friday morning by Lola Hall, his wife of little over a year, who came from Bellaire, Ohio, arriving in Brownsville Thursday. There she was informed that her husband had left her and that he had come to Charleroi to see another woman.

Mrs. Hall came here Friday and again found that he was missing. He and Mary Sarver of Charleroi had gone to Pittsburg, she was told, to get married. Hall with his new wife were returning to Charleroi on the 1:15 o'clock car when they were intercepted at the car barn by policeman, who was on the look out for them. They were taken before Justice of the Peace Harry W. Scott, and the marriage certificate produced showing evidence of their marriage in Pittsburg by Alderman J. J. Kirby on Friday.

Hall would not assign reasons for his conduct. He confessed his guilt and further stated that he and his wife had always gotten along well until he came out here to work and she had always treated him as she should. Hall was married once before, wife No. 1 being dead. His little son by her is being kept by wife No. 2. Mary Sarver or wife No. 3 stated that she did not know that Hall was a married man. Mr. Hall left for his home at Bellaire, Ohio.

Mary Sarver was placed on parole by Justice of the Peace Harry W. Scott for a definite period and is to report to Chief of Police C. W. Albright.

NINE ARRESTED BY POLICE IN MIDNIGHT RAID

The police broke up what was claimed to be an interesting little game of poker on Friday night at 11:30 o'clock at the home of Sam Goldstein on McKean avenue and nine men, all accused of being players were taken in the tolls. The arrests were made after complaints had reached the police station. Forfeits were required from four in the sum of $25 each, it being asserted that they were old offenders and five were required to put up $15 each for their appearance next Monday evening at 7 o'clock before Burgess S. L. Woodward. Some of the names given the police are believed to have been fictitious, but most of the men are known. Following is a list of the names, either real or fictitious: Jack Silverman, Dick Jackson, Joe Brown, Sam Goldstein, Abe Levinson, Schoenberg, P. Wayne, Joseph Lichter and G. Wayne.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Various warriors have various opinions of war and expressed them in various ways, according to a Charleroi man who has handed in the following for the Picked up in Passing column:

Napoleon I.—"The sight of a battle field after the fight is enough to inspire princes with a love of peace and a horror of war."

General U. S. Grant.—"Although a soldier by profession, I have never felt any fordness for war, and I have never advocated it except as a means of peace."

Louis Bonepart.—"Was isabsolutely an organized barbarism."

Sir Philip Sidney.—"War ought never to be accepted until it is offered by the hand of necessity."

Napoleon at St. Helena.—"The more I study the world, the more am I convinced of the inability of brute force to create anything durable."

Duke of Wellington.—"War is a most detestable thing. If you have seen but one day of war, you would pray God that you might never see another."

Washington.—"My first wish is to see this plague of mankind banished from the earth and the whole world in peace."

General Sherman.—"War is hell."

Those names of cities and rivers and forts that we encounter hourly, in the reports from the war, are making trouble A man and his wife had an awful row over "Liege" last night and ittook two policemen to pry them apart and comfortably lodge them in separate cells, according to the New York correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch. Acording to their testimony in court, the man pronounced the word "Li-eege" with a heavy acent on the last syllable. His wife smiled superiorly and corrected him, calling it "Leedge." This brought on jeering from the man, which resulted in the hurling of crockery by the woman and theman retaliated with shying the phonograph and followed it with a jardiniere. Then they clinched.

Without theslightest intention of stating any unpleasantness over it, a gentleman told his wife of the unseemly behavour of thecouple, adding "of course, they were both wrong, the proper pronounciation being 'Leeage.'"

"Huh," sniffed the wife, "that shows it's never safe to let you speak out before folk; but if you do use the word, for goodness sake get it right. Its not 'Lee-age,' it's Lee-ayzgh.'"

"But, my dear, you are wrong," he retorted. "I guess I ought to know, I—"

"Yes, you ought to know," she snapped back, 'but evidently you do not."

"But, my dear—"

"Not another word!"

That shut off the debate and the two had to sit and read the whole evening out without uttering another syllable.

BIBLE WILL BE READ AGAIN

Utilitarian Age for the Present Militates Against It, but It is Sure to Return.

A correspondent complains of a poet who wrote of "Bathsheba," where he had the "Queen of Sheba" in mind, and cries: "I wish there were some power to compel people to read their Bible."

Many persons will echo this wish, for various reasons. The orthodox, because they believe that the letter of the Word contains all things necessary for salvation. The great company of educators, of every station and degree, because many of them recognize the vast influence for intelligence, knowledge and culture which flows from a familiarity with the language of the King James version of the Scriptures. It would be easy to lengthen the list of those who "wish people could be compelled to read the Bible."

Granting all the happy exceptions which seem to prove the rule, the idea is pretty much a vain hope at the moment. It is not improbable that after the present generation of virtual illiterates in this country shall have grown old in their lives of striving to standardize mankind for utilitarian purposes the pendulum will swing back again toward the cultivation of intellectual pursuits, and in any such frame of public opinion consistent reading of and listening to the Bible from childhood to maturity will be sure to reappear. And then a generation will grow up again whose ears will always be filled with the resonance of those reverberating syllables of Scripture which have subconsciously influenced and guided the thought and speech and writing of the more influential among the leaders of opinion during the last century.—New York Sun.

THEIR MINDS IN A GROOVE

People Who Are Stationary in Their Thoughts and Opinions and Cannot See the World Move.

As often as anything is said to my neighbor, Wilcox, about the suffering brought by the extreme weather to the tenement districts, his remark is, "Yes, but they don't mind it as you or I would." This response is as prompt to act as the flare of a safety match, and something more certain. What is more, he has been repeating it for 20 years and he will—in common with some thousands of his brethren who conceive it the whole duty of man to vote the straight ticket and send their sons to college—go on repeating it for 20 more, if he lives.

Switchboard minds. Press a given button and get a given buzz. They would keenly resent the suggestion that they are doing business with the same office furniture that their fathers used. They would just as keenly resent the suggestion that they are not doing business with the same mental furniture that their grandfathers used They do so in print, and they do so across their own dinner tables. Now, it is inconceivable that they should do this on purpose. Nobody except a reformer (he asks nothing better) makes a spectacle of himself voluntarily. I suspect, therefore that the reason lies deeper; that it is a bread-and-butter reason to be searched out of patrons, clienteles, customers, and pay envelopes, and that honestly lovable folks who go on rehearsing such stupefying inanities as that "luxuries give employment to the working classs" do this not so much because people repeat themselves as because types do.—Atlantic Magazine.

Getting Rid of Bot Flies.

The United States department of agriculture has recently thoroughly tested a very unusual cure for the disease of horses called bots. Bots are the larvae of the horse bot fly, and live in the stomachs of the horses. They interfere with digestive processes to such an extent as to cause loss of flesh, generally poor condition, and often death. Dislodging them is extremely difficult.

In the treatment tested the horse was fed a little hay and oats in the morning, and allowed to go without food the rest of the day. In the evening a purgative was given. Next morning the horse was given three drams of carbon bisulphid in a gelatin capsule three times at intervals of an hour. When the capsule reached the horse's stomach it dissolved; and the carbon bisulphid, a liquid that is extremely volatile at the temperature of a horse's body, evaporated rapidly. The gas suffocated the bots and other parasites in the horse's stomach without injuring the horse in the least. The remedy was tried with complete success on a large number of affected animals.

Where Class Didn't Count.

A young woman from abroad was starting her conquest of the country by entering domestic service with a haughty East end family. She had an afternoon off and put on her finest finery and paraded down the street with another domestic. As they were walking along, talking of this and that, comparing experiences and notes and other such things, the companion said:

"Look, Norah! There's the woman you work for on the other side of the street!"

"Heavens, Maggie! I hope she don't see me!"

"Why? Are you afraid av yer boss?"

"No, ye fool. But it would be just like her to see this hat an' go an' get one just like it!"

BOON TO THE SMALL BOY

Stepless Cars in New York Enable Him to Procure Numerous Free Rides.

No matter what else can be said in regard to the new stepless cars now in operation on Broadway, they are certainly a boon to the small boy who depends on riding free, says the New York Times.

The advent of the pay-as-you enter car and the success of the idea of placing a tin guard over the rear bumper, thus frustrating the efforts of those bent on obtaining free rides by sitting on the bumper, have done much to obviate all chances of riding on surface cars without paying the necessary nickel. The small boy, as usual, suffered most from those inventions.

It goes without saying that it was not an intentional act on the part of the company providing means for the small boy to ride free.

The boy waits for a crowded car at a corner where he notices some one else waiting. When that person crowds into the car the boy follows, unknown to the conductor. The boy makes sure to hide himself behind the form of an adult. The conductor on his eyrie fails to notice the boy, and after the car has run on for a number of blocks the conductor cannot be positive the boy failed to deposit his nickel in the box.

AIR AFFECTED BY SOUND

Ventilation and Acoustics of Public Places Seem General Matter of Controversy.

The effect of ventilation on the acoustics of public halls has been a subject of investigation. Architects have found that currents or layers of air of different density interfere seriously with the passage of sound, but that a mass of moving air—if homogeneous—may have little influence. Heaters in front of the stage give especial trouble.

A book by C. Garnier mentions a new Paris theater in which air is admitted near the footlights, forming a kind of curtain between actors and spectators, and much interference results, the sound from the stage being weak, while that from the orchestra is intense.

In another theater with ventilation by heated air passed across the stage into the auditorium there was improvement in the acoustic qualities when the ventilating apparatus was working.

Another inquirer concludes that ventilation can have only slight influence in improving acoustics, that parallel layers of air may be particularly harmful, and that a single column of uniformly heated ascending air will affect sound very slightly.

By the Professor.

Professor Jones and Mrs. Jones were both of the type colloquially known as strawberry blonds. In accordance with the immemorial custom of professors' families on small salaries at this particular southern college, the Jones family grew apace. Mary, the first, was born, and her hair came perilously near to being cerise. The twins lost to Mary in respect of red hair by just a shade. Johnny, the next, bade fair at three months to make Mary seem a neutral color. Now, Mrs. Jones longed for just one black-haired one. When the learned professor of ology from the scientific department dropped in for supper, Mrs. Jones almost tearfully propounded to him a question.

"O, doctor," she asked, "do you think it must always be hereditary?"

The doctor looked from the aureoles of Professor and Mrs. Jones to the successive four alarms of fire-red hair on the little Joneses.

"Not so much that," he assured her at last, "as redheditary."

Putting Them "In Right."

A Canadian who had been on a pleasure jaunt to New York tells of an incident of Gotham's amusement life. He went to the Carnegie lyceum. It's a big place with several different entertainments going on at the same time in various parts of the building. On this particular day they had moving pictures of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" on the ground floor and an orchestra concert upstairs. Highbrow music-lovers and patrons of the movies would have got all mixed up in looking for their respective places of entertainment if it had not been for a big-voiced negro porter who stood at the stairs to announce in stentorian tones: "Dis way to de Symphony concert. Less Miserubble downstairs."

Hook and Eye.

The scene was a teachers' training college; the class one of girls; the lecturer on phonetics a gentleman with a nice taste in sarcasm. "This sound," he said, "has for symbol something even you can all remember—a dressmaker's hook; just the ordinary thing you are all familiar with." As he spoke, says the Manchester Guardian, he drew the symbol in chalk on the board, and the worried pupils all laughed. Even they—to borrow the professor's remark—knew that the "hook" depicted was an "eye."

Ozone Stimulates Yeast.

A new application of ozone has just been put into use by brewers. They have discovered that the fermenting power of yeast is greatly increased by subjecting it to the influence of ozone for five minutes. The power develops only after about two days. Ozone has an inhibitive action upon objectionable organisms.

Its a Mistake

Made By Many Charleroi Residents

Many people in a misguided effort to get rid of kidney backache, rely on plasters, liniments and other makshifts. The right treatment is kidney treatment and a remarkably recommended kidney medicine is Doan's Kidney Pills. Charleroi is no exception.

The proof is at your very door. The following is an experience typical of the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Charleroi.

Mrs. W. Urben, 736 Fallowfield avenue, Charleroi, Pa., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago and they cured me of kidney disease. Another of the family had lumbago and suffered from severe pains in his back. The trouble was brought on by colds which settled in his kidneys. He got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Piper's Pharmacy and took them. The backaches were relieved in a short time. There is nothing to retract from my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am only too glad to recommend them again."

Price 50c., at al l dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Urben had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The number of farmers who do is steadily increasing.

We never knew one to give up the practice after he had demonstrated its convenience.

Now, for instance, Mr. A and Mr. B, neighboring farmers have a deal, and in settling up, cannot make change. They must necessarily wait until one makes a trip to town, or they may find a neighbor who can help them out, all of which takes time. With a check book one may write the exact amount—not a cent more or less—and the deal is closed.

Of course we supply our customers with check books.

COUNTING WAR'S COST

WHAT MODERN NAVAL WARFARE MEANS IN DOLLARS.

English Journal Gives Some Figures That Should Interest Taxpayers—Single Broadside From Battleship Costs a Fortune.

One wonders while listening to the present loud complaints regarding the growth of the British navy bill what the protests would be like should Great Britain be called upon to pay a naval war bill. It is not easy to estimate the cost of a big naval battle, but considering that $10,000,000 has to be spent on a super-dreadnaught of the type of the Iron Duke, which has just been commissioned at Portsmouth, and that her guns use up powder and shot at the rate of $50,000 per minute, it would be a somewhat expensive business for the taxpayer if many such vessels were disabled or lost.

The Iron Duke is the world's most powerful ship, and has many unique features. She is the first battleship to be equipped with specially designed guns for fighting enemies in the air. These guns are capable of sending projectiles, specially designed for the purpose, to a height of over 10,000 feet at the rate of twelve or thirteen a minute. The Iron Duke is also the first vessel to carry a battery of twelve six-inch quick-firers for beating off the attacks of torpedo craft. Most of the earlier ships were armed with four inch guns for this purpose, but torpedo craft have grown so rapidly, and it is now possible for torpedoes to be fired effectively from such long distances that the mounting of heavier guns has become imperative. Hence the six-inch guns, which throw a hundred-pound projectile, and are the largest man-handled guns in the British navy.

The latest scientific instruments with which the Iron Duke is fitted enable these big guns to be aimed with marvelous accuracy, a score of 100 per cent hits being frequently made with them.

It is interesting to contrast this super-dreadnaught, which is 575 feet long, has a displacement of 25,000 tons, and is fitted with turbines of 29,000 horsepower, which enable her to travel over twenty-two knots an hour, with the last Iron Duke, a first-class battleship, launched almost exactly forty years ago, which was only 280 feet long, and displaced 6,010 tons.

Her armament consisted of ten nine-inch and four sixty-four-pounder muzzle-loaders. The total weight of her armor was 924 tons, about one-tenth of the weight of the new ship's protection. The hull and machinery of the ship of 1870 cost $731,570 and $250,825 respectively, the corresponding costs for the new vessel being $5,159,085 and $1,358,355, a striking illustration of the growth in the cost of battleships.—Tit-Bits.

Home Remedy Dangers.

It is quite pleasing to hear persons praise the harmless efficacy of domestic remedies, but no one knows better than the physician in general practise that the ignorant use of such remedies is a great feeder to the profession. One of these remedies, popularly supposed to be innocent, is turpentine, applied as a rubefacient. In the New York Medical Record is given a case tending to disprove this assumption. When one year old a slight eruption began. To this a preparation of camphorated oil and turpentine was applied, as the child suffered from bronchitis. The eruption greatly increased spread over the back, shoulders and chest and also to a less extent on the cheeks and forehead, and consisted of morbid pustules, annoying and painful. The lesions, as they healed, formed white pitted scars and fibrous thickenings dotted over with pits.

Showed Wealth of Egypt.

The khedive's tour through the Delta, which he has now completed, has shown in a remarkable manner the wealth of the land owners in the provinces. In many places private individuals decorated the roads over which the khedive motored for distances of several miles.

Coffee was served in cups worth $3,000; the chair in which the khedive sat during brief visits to the country houses had in many cases cost from $500 to $1,000, and one pasha who entertained the khedive for half an hour is alleged to have spent $50,000 on the preparations, while another borrowed cannon from the Egyptian army and fired a salute as his highness arrived.

In many places the crowds were so great that the khedival motor car was unable to proceed. Frequently the fellahin (peasants) kissed the car to demonstrate their loyalty.

Riis's Tribute to His Wife.

In "The Making of an American," published two years before the death of his first wife, Jacob A. Riis wrote of her as David Copperfield might have written of Agnes. He said:

"I dreamed a beautiful dream in my youth, and I awoke and found it true. My Silver Bride they called her just now (1903). The frost is upon my head, indeed; hers winter had not touched with its softest breath. Her footfall the lightest, her laugh the merriest in the house. The boys are all in love with their mother; the girls tyrannize and worship her together. The cadet corps elect her an honorary member, for no stouter champion of the flag is in the land."

COURAGE OF A HIGH ORDER

Officers and Privates of Regular Army Risk Almost Certain Death in Search for Comrade.

A story of daring feats in mountain climbing by two officers and two enlisted men of the First and Second regiments of infantry of the Hawaiian brigade who sought in vain to learn the fate of a private who wandered into "Hell's Pocket" in the Koolan mountains, Hawaii, has reached Washington in a report of commendation from their commanding officer, Brig.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A.

The exploits of the mountain climbers are described in the officer's report as the most perilous ever recorded. They surmounted cliffs that are almost inaccessible, dangled thousands of feet in midair as they were lowered down the sides of precipices and trailed ledges where a misstep meant instant death.

The officers commended are Second Lieutenant Thomas J. Camp, Second Infantry, and Second Lieutenant M. F. Nichols, C. A. C. The enlisted men are Corporal Farmer and Private Midkiff of the Second infantry.

The detachment, with 4,000 feet of small rope, took six hours of hard climbing to reach the crest of the range, which is described as virtually a knife edge with sheer cliffs on either side.

Private Midkiff, a Kentucky mountaineer, was the first to volunteer to go down on the other side of the precipice, where the officers believed the trail led. Gen. Edwards in describing the work of the detachment said:

"Private Midkiff was swung over the cliff by a rope the size of a middle finger, followed by Lieut. Camp. Later Lieut. Nichols followed, and then Corporal Farmer. These men for three days prosecuted the search in a howling wind and gale, in driving rain and enshrouding mists, on ledges of rotten stone and vegetation, endangered by fallen boulders and rocks. A slight slip when not tied with a rope meant death.

"They were swung down to vertical pocket after pocket averaging about fifty feet. These men knew that it was impossible that the man unaccounted for would be alive, and therefore we have the fine picture of these young officers putting their lives in jeopardy several times to rescue the body of a private, the kind of work that emphasizes the interest taken by the officer in the soldier."

Gen. Edwards also gives particular praise to the work done by Private Midkiff and Corporal Farmer.

Flowers and Politics.

The election for members of the French chamber of deputies is over. The campaign in one district brought forward a poetic theme. This was in the great flower-growing district of Cannes-Grass. In the polemic outbreak of the opposing candidates were heard the words "neroli" and "petit-grain." Neroli is the commercial designation of orange flower. It is a souvenir of the Princess Neroli and the name was chosen by the producers of the department of the Maritime Alps for to the princess was credited the establishing of the perfume industry which has since had such a remarkable development in that region. Neroli is often sophisticated by the addition of other essences. One of these is called "petit-grain," which is not of the flower, but of the leaf and fruit of the orange. This is why the two candidates shouted in the midst of the melee the cries "Neroli!" and "petit-grain!"—incomprehensible to a stranger—as were once shouted the battle cries "Montjoye!" and "Saint-Denis!"

Famous American Roads.

Something over 200 years ago there was built the first great American highway, "the old York road," between New York and Philadelphia. The construction of this famous road in 1711 was an example that led the colonists at other points along the Atlantic seaboard to make similar roads where there were no water routes. For the most part these roads were built by chartered companies, and were called turnpikes or toll roads. Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey had many roads of this kind.

The first macadamized road in this country was constructed in 1792 between Philadelphia and Lancaster. In 1811 there were said to be 4,500 miles of chartered turnpikes in New England and New York. During the next 20 years the government expended many millions of dollars in constructing great highways, but the panic of 1837 and the building of highways and canals put an end to that branch of the government work.

Baby Cut Off 200 Phones.

The birth of a baby in the home of Matteo Gionotti of Merlonville, N. J., cut off all telephone service in that section for the greater part of the day, to the rage of 200 subscribers.

The boy arrived at the Gionotti home shortly after midnight. There was nobody around to help Matteo celebrate, so he grabbed his shotgun and proceeded to blow holes in the atmosphere.

Mr. Newton, the phone company's wire chief, discovered the lines were useless when he came to work early in the morning. He searched until late in the afternoon. Then, opposite Gionotti's place, he found the broken wires hanging loose from the pole, with about a pound of shot in the cross-arm. Gionotti told all about it. Newton started to swear, changed his mind, grinned, said "Hope the kid's all right," and started repairs.

QUITE A DIFFERENT GAME

Interesting to Speculate Whether Baseball Players Could Equal Dexterity of Ironworkers.

What would baseball experts do if they were suddenly called upon to pitch red-hot rivets? Could they pitch and catch red-hot rivets standing on planks on the eighteenth story, say, of a rising skyscraper as cleverly as they juggle with baseballs on the baseball field?

It is just as absorbing and interesting to many folks to watch ironworkers pitch and catch red-hot rivets as it is to watch two baseball teams in action. Undoubtedly it requires a great deal of cleverness. Then danger in two forms is ever near the ironworkers. They may have a bad fall or be severely burned by a misdirected red-hot bolt. Judging by the manner in which they work, one would imagine they possessed as many lives as a cat.

A new steel skyscraper is being erected in any city, and the ironworkers engaged in putting the frame together are always successful in causing a crowd to gather by their expertness in pitching and catching red hot rivets. Spectators gather on the opposite side of the street and watch the ironworkers hour after hour.

The men who are in charge of the actual riveting are continually supplied with red-hot bolts by a young man who stands near them with an empty keg in his hands. His duty is to catch the flying rivets as they are thrown through the air by another young man who heats the rivets at a small furnace situated some distance from the man with the barrel. The pitcher never makes a wild pitch and the catcher never makes a miss.

NOW A COLLAPSIBLE BRIDGE

One Has Just Been Built in Philippines That Defies Floods So Frequent There.

A so-called collapsible bridge has been designed by the bureau of public works for use in the Philippine islands, where there are streams carrying just enough water to be unfordable. These same streams, according to Engineering News, are subject to floods of extreme height and force, which carry down large quantities of brush and trees. It is necessary to provide some crossing, but money is not available in sufficient sums to permit the construction of bridges permanent enough to withstand the extreme flood conditions.

The new "collapsible" bridge is essentially a series of pile timber bents, carrying short span timber girders and floor, which are attached to cables reaching to "deadmen" on the shore. In general the girder and floor system is broken in the middle of the bridge, and the cables extend from either side of the river to a point midway. During a flood the floor and girder are torn from their insecure fastening to the bent and swing downstream, attached to the cables. After the flood has passed the floor system is floated upstream and placed again upon the timber bents.

One such bridge was recently built at Gapan across the Penaranda river in the Philippines, and it is giving good service. The Penaranda river has a flood width of 1,640 feet, but its low-water width is somewhat under 300 feet. The bridge constructed for this site is 320 feet long and is made up of 16 20-foot spans.

Our Handicap.

W. H. Ellis, a naval architect of the Scotch firm that built the Aquitania, was praising America.

"I have come to admire America tremendously since my arrival in New York," he said. "You are a wonderful country. But then you have so many natural advantages, haven't you?

"The River Clyde with us has been brought up to its present draft by means of dredging, and so the Scotch are very proud of it.

"Well, a party of American sightseers turned up their noses at the Clyde one day.

"'Call this a river?' they said. 'Why, it's a mere ditch in comparison with our Mississippi or St. Lawrence or Delaware.'

"'Aweel, mon,' said a Scotch bystander, 'you've got Providence to thank for your rivers, but we made this oursel's.'"

Death House of Her Own.

Mrs. Madeline Ferola, the first woman convicted of murder in the first degree in New York city since 1898, will have a whole house to herself when she goes up the river.

Warden Clancy is preparing the house across the street from the wall the one occupied by Principal Keeper Connaughton before his death, two months ago. Three women keepers, formerly at Auburn prison, are expected to be on hand to look after Mrs. Ferola.

The prisoner killed a young man who had obtained a license to wed her and then backed out. She was convicted on evidence of her alleged accomplice and her ten-year old daughter.

NEW ROAD COMPLETED AT DONORA

Donora now has a new outlet to the country the contractors having completed the county road from Bamford hollow to the street car bridge in Eldora. The new road joins the Monongahela-Charleroi road which the state is likely to improve. The Donora council has under way the opening of an extension of McKean avenue giving direct and improved connection with the Donora end of the new road.

In the meantime automobilists can use the new road into or out of Donora by the way of the Brewery crossing over the Pennsylvania tracks at Donora and thence to Bamford hollow along the mill property. The road is not likely to become much traveled however until something is done with the outlet at North Charleroi. There is extremely bad piece of road exists that will test the courage [illegible] present condition.

PATRONS OF "MANLY ART"

Five Monarchs of Great Britain Noted for Their Admiration of the Fistic Game.

When King George V recently attended a public exhibition of boxing at the barracks of the Second Life Guards, and applauded the exhibition of the "manly art" furnished by Bombardier Wells and Pat O'Keefe, as well as the bouts between soldier pugilists, he did not establish a royal precedent. Every one of the five Georges who have ruled Great Britain has been a patron of boxing and enthusiastic in his admiration of the sport. George II, who ascended the throne just two centuries ago this year, was the first royal boxer. The modern fistic game had its beginning during his reign, when James Figg of Thame, Oxfordshire, became the first champion of England. George I, until his death, did everything in his power to promote the boxing game. When his son, George II, came to the throne in 1728 he gave royal encouragement to the sport and took private lessons from Broughton. The latter is said to have invented the first "gloves" (called "mufflers"), in order to prevent the possibility of damage to the royal countenance. George III was even more enthusiastic in his admiration of boxing than his predecessors. He boxed well, and, a century ago, he gave a boxing show to celebrate the triumph over Napoleon, the spectators including the rulers of Russia and Prussia. An ex-champion, Jem Belcher, was asked to form a coronation guard of honor, composed of boxers, when George IV (a brilliant boxer) was crowned in 1820. William IV was not interested in boxing, and Queen Victoria is said to have sought to stamp it out. Under George V it is apparent that boxing is to be again in royal favor. The king long ago learned how to box.

'UNCLE JOE' RADIATES HUMOR

Former Speaker Illustrates Small "Kick" by Relating Really Good Little Story.

"Well, boys, I'm on my way to Bermuda to boil out," said Uncle Joe Cannon to a group of New York reporters. "I hope you'll have cheaper taxicab fares when I get back."

"Do you think our taxicab rates are high, sir?" asked a young lady reporter.

Uncle Joe, chewing the end of his cigar, smiled grimly.

"Did you never hear of the New York house-breaker?" he said. "Well, a house-breaker rose up from behind a hat rack in a New York house as the owner entered late one night.

"'Throw up your hands!' he said.

"The owner did so."

"'Gimme all yer money.'

"'But,' said the owner, 'I've just come home in a taxicab.'

"The house-breaker's ferocious manner changed. He looked at his victim kindly. Then, putting his hand in his pocket, he said:

"'Here, my poor fellow, is a quarter [illegible]. So long!'"

New York's First Steam Ferryboats.

One hundred years ago the first steam ferryboat between New York and Brooklyn, named the Nassau, began running. Two years previously the first steam ferry between New York and New Jersey was established. For many years, until the opening of the Brooklyn bridge in 1883, the ferryboats afforded the only method of regular transportation between the two populous cities separated by the East river. In the course of time the service expanded until hundreds of the steam ferryboats were plying between Manhattan and various points on the Long Island and New Jersey shores and the islands in the bay and the East river. With the completion of new bridges and the opening of the tunnels under the East and North rivers the ferry traffic has diminished and doubtless in time will become extinct.

Very Easy.

The late Charles H. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder, had little sympathy with Socialism, and he used to tell this story:

"I had a Socialist draughtsman in my shipyard," so he would begin. "The draughtsman said to me one day:

"'The world's all wrong, Mr. Cramp. If I had my way I'd make a new law compelling the rich to divide up everything with the poor and then we'd all start equal. Wouldn't that be grand, eh?'

"'Grand? No!' said I. 'In ten years after that equal start there'd be the same inequality there is now.'

"'Then,' said the draughtsman, cheerily—'then we'd divide up again. Divide up every ten years. It's as easy as rollin' off a log, ain't it?'"

Peruvian Antiquities.

A remarkable collection of Peruvian antiquities, dating back, so archeologists believe, at least 3,000 years, has just been received by the American Museum of Natural History. In the collection are about 500 specimens of Nazca pottery and rare examples of textiles, feather work, and primitive slings decorated with quaint designs. It is by far the largest collection acquired by any museum in this country. Soon after the museum's collection was forwarded to New York the Peruvian government passed a law prohibiting the shipment of specimens of art to foreign countries. This early Peruvian art is so rare that a museum in Berlin has only four specimens of Nazca pottery.

Expensive Boat Race.

A writer in Bailey's Magazine of England has been figuring on the cost of the annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, and says the expense to each crew may be approximately estimated at $3,000 for each. He then says that as the contest rarely takes more than twenty minutes, the cost works out at about $300 per minute, or about $8 every time the oars dip into the water. The cost of the boats is placed at $250, and the oars at $70, the rest of the money going for preparation from October until the day of the race. The writer seems to think that $3,000 is a good deal of money to spend on a college crew (observes the New York Evening Post). It would be interesting to know what he would think of many times that amount spent upon the American college crews for the annual races.

Wronged.

Representative Henry told at a tea in Waco an international alliance story.

"The fair young daughter of the billionaire"—such was Mr. Henry's sneering beginning—"had accepted the earl of Lacland; but her father still seemed ill at ease.

"'I don't believe,' the old man complained, 'I don't believe that boy has sound ideas of finance.'

"'You are wrong, papa,' the young girl answered. 'Why, he stopped right in the middle of his proposal to ask how many interlocking directorates you held.'"

SOLD LIQUOR IS THE CHARGE

Tony Koshland of Coal Centre was found guilty Friday of selling liquor without license, on Sunday and to minors. On the first charge he was directed to pay the costs, fine of $500 and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for three months. On each of the other charges he was sentenced to pay the costs, fine of $50 and to undergo imprisonment in the county jail for 20 days, making the total imprisonment four months and ten days.

Marsans was a cook at a restaurant and there was no evidence that he sold any liquor, but there was evidence that been was shipped there in his name. It was in evidence that the brewery, would only ship five cases at a time to one man so that cases were wanted. Koshland denied selling the liquor but admitted he had handed out some drink simply out of hospitality.
